GREETING
to organizers and participants
Second Eurasian Conference and Symposium RISK-2020
April 12-19, 2020, Tbilisi, Georgia.

We cordially welcome the organizers, participants and guests of the Second Eurasian Conference RISK-2020 “Innovations in minimization of natural and technological risks”!

The First Eurasian Conference RISK-2019, which was held in 22-24 May 2019, in Baku, was a great success. The Second Eurasian Conference RISK-2020 expanded the scope, expanded the circle of participants, especially, noteworthy is the involvement of young scientists in the complex problem of risk assessment.

The topics of this Conference - “Innovations in minimizing natural and technological risks”, and Symposium - “Minimizing the most common project risks in the oil and gas industry”, - are very relevant, especially in connection with the transition to risk-oriented approaches to assess integrated safety in oil and gas industry. The scale of the Conference is characterized not only by a wide range of thematic reports, but also by a significantly enlarged circle of participants, practically from all over the world.

We hope that the holding of the Conference, discussion of reports and messages will contribute to deepening comprehensive mutually beneficial cooperation in minimizing risks and ensuring increased industrial and environmental safety of the participating countries.

We sincerely wish all the participants of the Conference success in this complex but demanding solution issue to ensure the development of safe technologies and the prevention of possible global disasters.

On behalf of the Union Russian oil and gas industrialists,

The President
